ELDERS HEAR GIRL'S CHARGES

A TROUBLE MAKER CAUSED'EM, SAYS PASTOR HAND.

But Miss Louis's Father Hints at Red Hot Developments and the Village of Rye Stands Squarely Divided Over the Story of the Boninie's Indiscretions.

The village of Rve. N. Y., is all excitement over a church scandal in which the name of one of its clergymen, the Rev. J. Howard Hand, pastor of the First Methodist Church, is mentioned. While no definite charge against the pastor has been made in the church, Miss Helen Louis, who is 17 years old and a daughter of William Louis, a gardener in the employ of H. N. Curtis of New York, has written out a statement, which is now in the hands of the church elders, accusing the pastor of trying to hug her.

The trouble started about a month ago and was brought to a head on Wednesday by one of the local papers in an article accusing the minister of "grossly immoral" conduct toward several of the younger members of his congregation.

On Aug. 1 the Epworth League gave a trolley ride to Stamford. About 100 mem bers and guests made up the party and among them were the minister, his wife and Miss Louis. Mr. Hand sat next to Miss Louis on the trolley ride and is said to have paid her marked attention. A day or two later he called upon her at her home. What happened there both refused to tell at present, but promise to testify before the quarterly meeting of the church trustees. At all events gossip was so busy that Miss Louis and the minister had a meeting to talk over the affair and Miss Louis sent a statement to the Ladies' Aid Society of the church. Mr. Louis refused to tell yesterday exactly what his daughter's statement contained, but said:

She told me the dominie tried to hug her and made remarks to her. I appeared before the trustees the other night and told friem that the incident was closed, I had called upon the minister and compelled him to return my daughter's picture. The minister called at my house several Fimes and his remarks to my daughter were not to my liking. If there is ever any legal suit there will be some red hot develop-legal suit there will be some red hot developments. I assure you."

That is the story which is accepted as true by half the village. The other half are sure the trouble was started by some enemy of the pastor.

The Rev. Mr. Hand was seen at his camp at Cakland yesterday and freely discussed all of the situation excepting the grounds for the story. The minister is a genial looking man about 55 years old and has four children. He has been connected with the Methodist Church for thirty-three years and has been at the head of the church in Rye for a year.

"I was warned when I came here a year ago," he said, "that there were trouble-makers in my congregation, and I believe that this whole row is due to one man. Some time ago I had occasion to bring a member of my congregation to time. He was an elder and I believe he is behind this trouble. But I'm going to fight this to the bitter end and shall sue the Portchester Item for criminal libel.

"Miss Louis never would have said what she is said to have said unless some one put it into her head. She may have misunderstood some remark I made to her. I understand that is the case, Why, mywife was with me and sat opposite us on that trolley ride when I was accused of paying attentions to several girls."

Is it true that you kissed or 'hugged'

that trolley ride when I was accused of paying attentions to several girls."

"Is it true that you kissed or 'hugged Miss Louis?" the pastor was asked.

"I would rather not discuss the matter until after the church meeting," he replied.

"I we there have been no charges made. I can't deny mere rumors. There was nothing to it save perhaps a bit of what you might call foolishness. Why, there was a young man who sat on the other side of Miss Louis who paid her most marked attention. As for her picture, she gave it to me of her own free will as have many other ladies during my thirty-three years other ladies during my thirty-three years other ladies during my thirty-three years in the ministry.

"As for the other girls mentioned I think it an outrage to try to drag their names into the affair at all. They don't wish to appear in the case and are very dear friends of ours. I understand, although I do not know absolutely, that Miss Louis made a written statement which she gave to Mrs.McClenon of the Ladies'Aid Society. This statement, I am told, was forwarded to the presiding elder, Dr. J. E. Adams of Stamford, and will be acted upon tonight. There is to be a meeting of the elders at the church to find out if there is enough in this matter to have charges made. Miss Louis, her father and others interested, have been asked to appear, and if they have anything to say against me to do so. I will be there to defend myself and do not anticipate any trouble. I may possibly have something to say later on, probably to-morrow, but I must decline to say anything further concerning the case now."

"Have you a tub at home?' said the druggist, real mean like, and since that day worth there.

"These people say that Mr. Dyer is mean to children. He isn't at all."

Some of those who appeared in court ageinst Mrs. Allen, who wasn't there herself, and Dyer were Charles Shirk of 131 Manhattan avenue, W. H. Ebbitts of 137, and David Hirschfield of 141. Ebbitts said Dyer hated children so much that he threw ashes on the sidewalk to keep them from skating, and that he was afraid to leave a garbage barrel outside his house for fear that Dyer would run to the Board of Health and complain. Mrs. David Hendricks, who lives in the neighborhood, said that Dyer chased her boy.

Mrs. McClenon acknowledged having received a statement from Miss Louis, but refused to comment in any way upon the matter. The elders, who have the matter in hand and who will bring charges against the pastor, if charges are brought, are Dr. J. E. Adams, W. F. Hendrix, cashier of the Rye National Bank; William Brundage and Principal Shutts.

When it leaked out in the village yesterday afternoon that there would be a meeting at the church in the evening there was a good deal of excitement and much discussion. Members of the congregation stopped one another on the street to talk about the church's scandal, but a stranger a member of any of the other churches or a member of any of the other churches was met with a cold stare when he attempted

Although it was known that the meeting would be open only to those immediately interested and the church elders, many of the members of the congregation found it convenient to take a stroll around toward the church just before the conclave

When the meeting was over those who had taken part in it hurriedly left the church and refused to discuss the night's proceedings. Members of the congregation gradually departed, some disgruntled because they were not enlightened as to the outcome, others looking wise as though the whole situation was at last clear to them.

Elder Hendrix, after some questioning, made this satement:

BLUE FLAMES IN SUBWAY. Fuse of Local Train Blew Out at Bleecker

Street-Scared Timid Passengers. A fuse on the forward car of a southbound Lenox avenue local subway train blew out with a loud report yesterday morning near the Bleecker street station Then followed blue, green and yellow flashes of electric light and the odor of burning

The train was crowded. Some of the passengers lost their common sense in the excitement and rushed and pushed toward the doors. The guards, realizing that the doors. The guards, realizing that windows would be smashed if they didn't act quickly, opened the sliding doors.

In the meantime, a porter ran to the car and dashed a pail of water on the spot where the blaze was. The water caused another slight explosion and filled the subway with steam and smoke for nearly a block in either direction.

The smoke pouring from the klosks at Bleecker street attracted the attention of a policernan. When he got down to the stion he found that a cool based electrician had thrown a few shovelfuls of sand on the fuse and the troub'e was all over. After a new fuse had been put in place the train went on downtown. The line was blocked for twenty minutes. No one was booked for twenty minutes. No one was blocked for twenty minutes. No one was

BARKS, BOMBS AND REDPEPPER

WIDOW ALLEN AT WAR WITH A FEW OF HER NEIGHBORS.

Mr. Dyer and His Whiskers Seem to Be an Issue, Likewise a Capacious Soda Glass-Magistrate Takes a Couple of Weeks to Think Over Assault Charge.

The neighbors of the Widow Allen, who lives at 139 Manhattan avenue, haven't got along with her very well for the past two years. Six of them appeared yesterday in the West Side court complaining about her and her boarder, John M. Dyer, to Magistrate Mayo. They wanted both Mrs. Allen and Dyer arrested for attempted assault.

Besides six men who appeared before the Magistrate, there were twenty or more women and children, who byzzed in an anteroom and regarded Mr. Dyer scornfully. Magistrate Mayo listened to a tale of bombs exploding at dawn under the widow's windows, snare drums rattled while the widow dozed, red pepper put on stoops for the confusion of neighborhood kids, the raids of "Whiskers," a cut telephone wire and things like these. He gave up and postponed consideration of the case until

Mrs. Allen is the widow of Charles M. Allen, who was superintendent of the New York Hospital. She is an invalid, greatly pestered by sciatica, rheumatism and other ailments. Her home is one of an orderly row of pretty red brick stone trimmed houses in Manhattan avenue, near 106th street. Dyer has been boarding there. Sometimes he does the cooking, he says, Mrs. Allen told of the feud:

"Going on two years ago," said she, "I went into my back yard and saw a nosy man stringing a telephone wire over my house. I know my rights, I know them to a T, and I told him to go away. He tried to talk soft, but I wouldn't have it. The wire was being strung for David Hirschfeldt's house, at 141, but they hadn't said anything to me. A day or two later I looked out and there was the wire all strung over my nice new roof that I had paid $50 for. I had that wire cut, and that, I suppose, was the cause of the trouble.

"Across the street was a family that

"Across the street was a family that owned a small dog. Every evening that they went out they left that dog in an upper room. It howled the livelong night. Well, I sent Mr. Dyer to the Board of Health and they took doggie away. I became popular with the folks over the way.

"Not very far from me lives a man I never liked. His wife came to me one day and wanted to see my doctor in my own house. She had black and blue marks on her face. That man took a dislike to me.

"All these people have children and it wasn't long before they began to annoy me. One bunch of children would wake up early in the morning so they could shoot off fire crackers under my window. Another boy bought a drum that he played at all hours of the day and night. Whenever Mr. Dyer went to reason with them, they called him "Whiskers" and made goatlike noises.

"Then the druggist at the corner got mad at me. Mr. Dyer and I went there one day for a glass of soda. I took my own glass, for I am particular about what I drink out of, and it was a little large.

"Have you a tub at home?" said the drug-

Mrs. David Headricks, who lives in the neighborhood, said that Dyer chased her boy.

Policeman Kearns of the West 100th street station, who had been called dozens of times in the feud and who had attempted to make peace, said he found a reddish powder on the stoop of 134 Manhattan avenue, a stoop the children of the neighborhood played on a good deal. He took it to the corner druggist, who pronounced it red pepper of a virulent kind. The witnesses said that Dyer put the pepper there.

KILLKARE RAN FOR THE CHORUS. The Principals in Lew Fields's Show Also

Shared in Sheepshead Killing. Whatever extra dash and vim there were in the performance of "It Happened in Nordland" at Lew Fields's Theater last night bad a reason. Killkare, one of the late Fred Hamlin's favorite colts, was knocked down to J. H. McAvoy in the sale of Mr. Hamlin's stable shortly after his death a year ago. When Killkare appeared as an entry in the race for maiden fillies at Sheepshead yesterday, principals and chorus decided to take a flier. They put their money down in Tenderloin poolrooms at around 100 to 1. Killkare romped home a winner. Lew Fields won wages, has decided to have a Labor Day revival dinner on Monday evening at German Odd Fellows Hall, 67 St. Mark's place. It will be attended by a number of persons who took part in the first Labor Day demonstration. George K. Lloyd of the Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers will read the first Labor Day proclamation ever issued.

News of Plays and Players. Henry W. Savage selected a title yesterday for the new John Kendrick Banga-Manuel Klein opera. It will be called "The Merry Millennium." The plot deals with social conditions in the year 2905 and is a humorous satire on the result of modern tendencies. Mr. Savage will produce "The Merry Millennium" early in October. Included in the cast are Christie MacDonald, Helen Marvin, Helen Hale, Reuben Fax and J. Clarence Harvey. The first dress rehearsal of George Ade's latest comedy, "The Bac Samaritan," was held vesterday at the Garden Theater. Richard Golden is in the leading role of Uncle Ike Gridley. Others in the cast are Anne Sutherland, Grace Fisher. Edward anne Sutaerland, Grace "Ishler. Edward See, E. Y. Backus and George Marion. "The Bad Samaritan" company will leave for Washington Sunday morning.
